WITH today's government crop estimate of 12 1-3 million bales Southern cotton-growers can give thanks to leaders who had the foresight to insist that the cotton abandonment program be enforced this year, late though it was.

Some of Pledged Cotton Reported as Not Destroyed

Inspectors Complain That Plowing is Not Thorough Enough

IT COULD BE PICKED

Destruction Must Be Complete—Will Measure Acreage

Emergency Agriculturist Frank Stanley sent out warnings Tuesday to Hempstead county farmers that cotton pledged to be taken out of production under the government reduction plan "emphatically must be destroyed."

His warning followed complaints by final inspectors who reported to Mr. Stanley that some farmers are not sufficiently destroying or plowing under cotton stalks, leaving them partly standing whereby there would be a chance for the stalk to produce cotton which could be picked later in the season.

Mr. Stanley also warned that inspection and reports sent to Washington would not take the farmer's word for the correct reduction.

Of the 19,910 acres actually pledged to be destroyed under provisions of the reduction plan in this county, only 3,000 acres have passed final inspection and reports sent to Washington for government cash.

Inspectors estimated Tuesday that 15,000 acres of the total pledged amount has been partially destroyed, but certificates to farmers for cotton taken out of production are being temporarily held up on account of trouble in obtaining complete destruction of cotton stalks.

Hempstead county farmers will receive approximately $165,000 for cotton reduction—besides a large amount for options taken on government cotton. No checks to Hempstead farmers have been received, Mr. Stanley stated Tuesday, questioning rumors that part of the checks were issued last week.

Legislators Are Believed Eligible

Ben Carter Denies Temporary Employment Is "Office"

LITTLE ROCK—Holding that the 13 members of the legislature who have been appointed to positions with the Home Owners Loan Corporation by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board in Washington, D. C., are not ineligible under the state constitution, Representative Ben E. Carter of Miller county, attorney for the Home Owners Loan Corporation in his county, Monday issued the following statement in part:

"Employment as county appraiser or county attorney is not an office. The question of what is an office and who is an officer has been before our court several times. In Rhoden vs. Johnson, 121 Ark. 317, the court held that the position of road overseer in Conway county was not an office but a mere employment.

"Following decisions of Chief Justice Marshall of the United States Supreme Court, our court held that an office must include the idea of tenure, duration, emoluments and duties, all prescribed by the law creating the office. Where the statute providing for the employment prescribes no definite tenure of office, and does not fix the pay nor the duties, then there is no office. In Middleton vs. Miller county, 134 Ark. 514, the court held that the position of county health officer was not an office. The court pointed out that he took no oath, made no bond, that the statute did not prescribe his duties nor his pay. It was not 'an office with duties and compensation definitely fixed by law.'

One of the 13 legislators in question is L. F. Monroe, Washington and Hope attorney, Hempstead county representative, who also is Hempstead attorney in charge of passing on titles to property submitted to the Home Owners Loan Corporation.

LABOR IS ON GUARD

A. F. of L. Asks Members to Report Violations of Code

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Signs multiplied Tuesday that the National Recovery Administration will brook no holding back or double-dealing in its determined prosecution of plans to bulwark popular buying power and employment.

Recovery Administrator Johnson has given these businesses still outside the NRA blanket code two weeks to come in before asking the public to apply the boycott screws.

Labor organizations throughout the country have been instructed by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, to watch for infractions of the code.

Although The Star no longer lives on South Main street we picked up a complaint today that sounds like a familiar editorial yelp from back in the days of 1929-31.

"They do say that Hope's farmer friends are still using Main street as a huckster's stand. I recollect that The Star staff didn't mind the retailing of ordinary produce at the curb in front of its door—but what we used to kick about was the selling of baled hay. It just naturally drifted along Third and Main streets and wrapped itself around your neck.

What we're getting at is that it's a shame a farm-trading city as big as Hope is, doesn't have a Curb Market or at least a specified farm trading lot.

Don't imagine present conditions are any more convenient for the farmers than for townsmen.

On the other hand, there are half a dozen vacant lots downtown which the city might lease down for a small sum, and invite farmers and town-folk to do their bartering there.

Vocational Work Will Be Advanced

Federal Government to Push County Agents' Program

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Promotion of vocational education and the research necessary to carry it out this week will become a function of the Interior Department and the Office of Education, successors to the federal Board for Vocational Education.

The board, an independent agency since 1917, remains in existence as an advisory group, serving without pay, under President Roosevelt's executive order reorganizing the government, which becomes effective this week.

A two-fold duty forms the activity: Co-operation with state boards in promotion of vocational education, and research into this subject, which entails preparation of reports, studies and suggestions to the state for their programs.

In carrying out the general vocational education policy, the government supplies funds to the states and local communities, with the requirement that they spend an equal amount.

From the initial appropriation of $1,369,000, the board's funds grew to $7,367,000 in 1932, and $500,000 yearly was added in 1933 for the four-year period ended last July 1 for home economics and agricultural extension work.

Miners Call Off Coal Field Strike

100 Local Union Heads Make Peace for 20,000 Tuesday

UNIONTOWN, Pa.—(P)—More than 100 heads of United Mine Workers locals, representing about 20,000 miners, voted unanimously Tuesday to return to work in the soft coal fields of southwestern Pennsylvania.

Their action was in reply to the appeal of President Lewis of the U. M. W. to uphold the industrial peace pact signed by labor and capital and published last Saturday by President Roosevelt.

For a time the rebellious union miners had refused to follow instructions.

'Help Wanted' Ad Followed by Riot

Chicago Firm Has to Call Out Police to Stem Mob

CHICAGO.—(P)—A big "help wanted" advertisement in a Sunday newspaper asking for 1,500 girls to wrap candy brought 15,000 applicants and nearly a riot Monday.

Women's dresses were torn in the scramble for advantageous positions in line, several were badly bruised and a policeman was pushed through a glass door and cut on the arm.

The additional help was required by a candy company, its officials explained, because under the National Recovery Act the company decided to operate on four six-hour shifts.

The advertisement called for 1,500 experienced candy makers or wrappers, women only—but half the crowd of applicants turned out to be men.

They began to arrive at dawn, and by the time the employment office opened the line extended for several blocks and police reserves were called to attempt to keep order.

To Stop Sale of Weapons to Gangs

Thompson and Colt Companies Will Co-Operate With U. S.

WASHINGTON.—The first step in dismantling the underworld army of racketeers and gangsters was taken by the federal government Monday when Joseph B. Keenan, special assistant to the attorney general, announced that machine gun manufacturers are agreeing not to sell weapons to gangsters.

An agreement to sell machine guns only to governmental units has already been negotiated with the Thompson Firearms Company, Keenan said, and a similar compact with the Colt Company is believed to be in the mail on its way to the Department of Justice.

These two concerns are the major manufacturers in the business, it was explained.

Keeping weapons out of the hands of criminals has been one of the major objectives in the drive which Attorney General Homer S. Cummings has started on the underworld. It seemed close to realization through the work of Special Assistant Keenan.

A federal law controlling the interstate movement of weapons may still be sought at the next session of congress, however.

21 Killed as War Flares Up in Cuba Against Machado

Hated President Answers His Critics With Machine-Guns

U. S. ENVOY ACTIVE

Ambassador Wells Works Desperately to Bring About Peace

HAVANA, Cuba.—(P)—One wounded person died Tuesday, bringing the known fatalities in Monday's riotous political disorders in Havana's streets to 21.

The capital was quiet Tuesday morning, the army having been withdrawn from the city following an outbreak of firing late Monday in which more than 100 persons were wounded in addition to a number of known killed.

The disorders climaxed a week of agitation and strikes, which spread as Opposition leaders sought to induce President Machado, political storm center, to retire from office.

American Ambassador Wells continued his conference with leaders of all groups Tuesday.

Massacre at Havana

HAVANA, Cuba.—In answer to the nation-wide clamor for his resignation, President Gerardo Machado by Morales Monday night by authority of congress withdrew citizens' constitutional rights and threw martial law over the whole of Cuba.

But in clashes which began before the official decree, 20 persons were killed, 166 wounded and 491 jailed.

Before 5 o'clock when congress met in a joint extraordinary session, tens of thousands of citizens had gathered in front of the national capitol. Many were there in response to false reports over the radio that President Machado was resigning or had resigned.

They were waving Cuban and American flags and cheering.

A section of the crowd, estimated at 50,000 moved away and advanced toward the palace, Machado's official residence. They were met with rounds of machine gun fire directed by soldiers stationed on top of the palace.

Victims fell by the scores.

Meanwhile congress was granting the president's requests for dictatorial powers. At 7, the president declared that a state of civil war exists. By 8 the military had replaced civil authorities. Infantry, artillery and cavalry were patrolling Havana and other cities of the island.

Celebration Starts

When the radio report inspired by the A. B. C. society went out that President Machado had asked congress for an indefinite leave of absence, citizens accepted it for the truth and thronged into the streets to celebrate. The report had been current since early afternoon. A crowd of immense proportions marched up the Prado yelling "vivas." It had been stated that Machado would leave the country.

At the capital where a strong police detachment was on duty, no hostile demonstration was made. From the capitol the crowd went to Central park where an Oppositionist orator delivered a harangue from the base of the statue of Jose Marti, Cuba's George Washington.

At this moment soldiers on duty at the presidential palace, three blocks away, opened machine gun fire while other machine guns manned by police and placed on central streets leading to the palace, raked the crowds marching on the palace. Wounded crowded into the American embassy, seeking refuge, and the place was converted into a huge hospital.

Ambassador Sumner Wells at the time was in the Hall of Congress. Other persons were killed throughout the city. Random shooting was heard into the night from all directions.

Wells Submits Plan

Earlier in the day, Ambassador Wells had said that he had submitted to Machado a plan to restore normalcy (from Cuba's four-day nationwide strike) within 36 hours. He said both the Opposition and political parties supporting Machado had accepted and now it was up to the president.

It is generally believed that the plan includes President Machado leaving Cuba immediately after being granted an indefinite leave of absence by congress. Good authority says that Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, former Cuban ambassador to Washington, will replace Machado.

The procedure of suspending constitutional guarantees and declaring martial law was said to be for the purpose of allowing Machado and his principal adherents an opportunity to leave the country safely.

On the other hand, there is no accurate information available. Government reports state tersely that President Machado will not resign and that the military will now proceed to restore normalcy through martial law.

Last Act of Mercy

President Machado, against whom a large part of Cuba has been in more or less open revolt for several years, "cracked down" with machine-guns Monday, slaughtering a score and wounding 100 others. But before that he had listened to American Ambassador Sumner Wells and declared an amnesty for political prisoners. The picture shows Ramiro Valdes Dausa, youthful rebel, being embraced by his father after release from prison in Havana.

Hempstead County's first class man of mystery, whom relatives sought for 16 years, returned to Hope late Monday afternoon.

He is Shelton Honeycutt, who vanished one January morning in 1917. His case has been baffling to relatives and investigators, as no word was ever received from him until a letter arrived here the latter part of July, addressed to a sister, Mrs. Harry Segnar.

Upon arriving here Monday afternoon on a Missouri Pacific bus he immediately inquired of his sister, Mrs. Segnar, and went directly to her home. His sister did not recognize him. He didn't know her. Both were in their teens when he disappeared.

During his 16 years' absence Honeycutt has been places. Besides a greater part of the United States his travels have taken him into China.

His first stop after leaving here in 1917 was Beaumont, Texas, where he worked for Standard Oil company three years. From there he went to California. Employed by Owl Drug company stores, he lived there for a number of years.

Adventure beckoned again. Since then he has traveled extensively, his journey finally bringing him home.

His immediate relatives are, his aged father, DeAnn community; four brothers, Jewell, Lemuel, Alton and Odie Honeycutt; and two sisters, Mrs. John Breeding and Mrs. Harry Segnar, all of Hempstead county.

The dog had been with Bunch for eleven years and when Bunch's body was brought home from the hospital, the dog was lifted for a last view of his master.
